TALKING TO HEAVEN.—A mother living not very far from the postoffice in this city, tired with watching over a sick baby, came down stairs for a moment the other day for a few seconds' rest. She heard the voice of her little four-year-old girl in the hall by herself, and, curious to know to whom she was talking, stopped a moment at the half-open door. She saw that the little thing had pulled a chair up in front of the telephone, and stood upon it, with the piece pressed against the side of her head. The earnestness of the child showed that she was in no playful mood, and this was the conversation the mother heard, while the tears stood thick in her eyes, the little one carrying on both sides as if she were repeating the answers:

"Hello!"
"Well, who's there?"
"Is God there?"
"Yes."
"Is Jesus there?"
"Yes."
"Tell Jesus I want to speak to him."
"Well?"
"Is that you, Jesus?"
"Yes, what is it?"
"Our baby is sick and we want you to let it get well. Won't you, now?"

No answer, and statement and question again repeated, finally answered by a "yes."

The little one hung the ear-piece back on its hook, clambered down from the chair, and, with a radiant face, went for mother, who caught her in her arms.

The baby, whose life had been despaired of, began to mend that day and got well.—Elmira Free Press.

Miss Frances H. Willard writes to the White Mountain Echo suggesting that the White Mountain peak called "The Haystack", be renamed Mount Garfield, in honor of the President, "whose face was set toward the White Hills on the morning of his attempted assassination."

One letter out of 300 sent is unclaimed in the office to which it goes. One in 283 turns up at the Dead Letter Office. One in 3,100 is held for postage at the office of mailing, and this amounts to nearly 300,000.

EVERYTHING JUST AS IT SHOULD BE.

How strange it would be if the roses
Gave their beauty and perfume to spring;
If summer the cowslip and crocus,
Arbutus and snowdrop should bring,
If the strawberries ripened in autumn,
And the birds cause the winter to sing!

'Twould not only be strange, but be sad, dears,
For I'm sure we would scarcely know spring,
If the pretty shy flowers that love her
Did not to her green garments cling,
And summer would seem not like summer,
With no roses their fragrance to fling
To the soft, wooing winds, and no song-birds
To sit in the tree-tops and sing;
And strawberries ripening in autumn
Would not taste half so sweet as in spring;
So everything's just as it should be,
For Our Father ordained everything.

FACTS FOR THE CURIOUS.

THE number of bones in the human body is 240. The average number of teeth is 32.

THE velocity of the electric waves through the Atlantic cables is from 7,000 to 8,000 miles per second.

A MAGNET weighing two ounces sustains a weight of three pounds two ounces, or twenty-five times its own weight.

THE oxygen of the air aids and facilitates the germination of plants, and seeds buried so deeply in the ground as to be out of reach of the action of atmospheric air will exhibit no signs of life.

THE tiger does not naturally possess, but easily acquires, a love of human flesh. When he has once tasted it, the spell of man's supremacy is broken, and ever after that, it is said, he prefers it to any other.

THE director of the Bureau of Statistics at Vienna has made some interesting researches concerning the comparative longevity of women and men in Europe. He finds that out of 102,831 individuals who have passed the age 90 years, 60,488 are women, and only 42,528 are men. In Italy, 244 alleged centenarian women are found for 141 men of that age.

A HOLLOW tree in Southern California has been converted into a dwelling. Doors and windows have been put in, and floors built for eight stories, the entrance being made by means of a ladder. Outside the topmost room is a small balcony, shaded by the foliage of the tree. The occupant expects to get rich by having no plumber bills to pay.

VASCO NUNEZ DE BALBOA, a Spaniard of wonderful courage and adventure, smuggled himself on board a ship in a cask, in order to join an expedition to Darien, in 1510, commanded by Francisco de Encisco. He ultimately obtained a supreme command of the new colony, and in 1513 discovered the Pacific ocean from the top of a mountain on the Isthmus of Panama.

A WELL-KNOWN Paris scientist, Dr. Debaumay, has made the curious discovery that to a certain the qualities of an applicant cook it is sufficient to give her a plate to clean or a sauce to make and watch how she moves her hand in either act. If she move it from left to right, or in the direction of the hands of a watch, you may trust her; if in the other way, she is certain to be stupid and incapable. Similarly the intelligence of people may be gauged by asking them to make a circle on paper with a pencil, and noting in which direction the hand is moved. The good students in a mathematical class draw circles from left to right. The inferiority of the softer sex (as well as of male dunces) is shown by their drawing from right to left; asylum patients and children do the same. In a word, centrifugal movements are a characteristic of intelligence and higher developments; centripetal are a mark of incomplete evolution. A person, as his faculties are developed, may come to draw circles the opposite way to what he did in youth. Dr. Debaumay has some further extraordinary conclusions as to the relative positions of races in the scale of development from the way they wind their watches and make their screws.

A Good Grindstone.

The American Builder thus sums up the qualities of a good grindstone: It should be strong, simple and clean; the trough expanded, to catch as much as possible of the drip-water and grit; a movable shield, securely hinged, to keep the water from splashing, and yet permit the stone to be used from either side; rests provided, upon which to rest tools and the rod for truing the stone, these rods being arranged to move toward the center as the stone wears smaller. The bearings should be generous in size, proper provision being made for oiling without washing the grit into the bearings with the oil, and the ends of the bearings being protected by some device which effectually prevents the entrance of the grit. The stone should be secured to the shaft by nuts and washers, and the washers fixed so that they cannot turn with the nuts as they are screwed up or unscrewed. In hanging the stone, great care should be taken to hang it true side-wise, not only for convenience in using, but because a stone that is not true sidewise can never be kept true edgewise.

A BRIGHT little 3-year-old, while her mother was trying to get her to sleep, became interested in some outside noise. She was told that it was caused by a cricket, when she sagely observed: "Mamma, I think he ought to be oiled."

THE SOCIETY REPORTER.

His Sad Experience in Brooklyn.

"Well, how did you get along at the party last night?" asked the city editor of the Brooklyn Eagle of a new reporter whom he had engaged the day before, and whom he had sent to write up a social occasion.

"Not very well," responded the new reporter, gloomily. "I don't think Brooklyn society is the top-notch racket anyhow."

"What's the matter?" demanded the city editor; "didn't they use you well?"

"I can't say they did," rejoined the new reporter. "Now, I went up there last night and waded right into the fun. I asked for the Chairman of the party, and told him we were laying out to swell their heads in to-day's issue, and he'd better skip in and introduce me to some of the high-bugs if he calculated to have his name mentioned in the report."

"What did he say to that?" asked the city editor, with a calm gleam in his eye.

"He wanted to know who sent me. I told him the main guy of this literary bank had fired me in there, and that when I'd got through shaking a leg I'd like some facts about the lay-out. If he couldn't give 'em, I told him, he'd better get the secretary to heel up pretty lively or I'd give the whole outfit a deal in the paper that would make him think every hair on his head a band of music, and all playing different tunes."

"And what did he say to that?" inquired the city editor, the gleam deepening ominously.

"Oh! he was a friend to the Eagle and would do what he could for me. I told him he'd better hop right at it, and first I wanted to meet the gals. If he calculated to hold the friendship of the Eagle, I said, he didn't want to waste much funny business before he had me me bumping around in the mazy. He said if I'd go up stairs and take off my hat and overcoat, he'd see me later."

"Did you do it?" asked the city editor, in a constrained tone.

"No. I said I wanted some grub first. So he took me down in the front kitchen, and asked me if I liked boned turkey. I told him I'd take a leg and some of the breast. What do you think he gave me? Head-cheese! If he didn't you can lick me. I couldn't eat that, and so I asked him for a glass of beer and a cheese sandwich. He said he had some wine, so I drank a bottle and put a couple in my pockets."

"What did you do then?" interrogated the city editor, fingering a length of gas-pipe.

"I went up to the parlor, and he said I'd better take a description of the scene before I danced, and he gave me the names. Here they are: Mary Monroe, red frock, white sack, and hair bunched. Emma Latrobe, yellow dress and high-heeled slippers; Marion Willoughby, some kind of thin stuff, white, and tied up with blue tape, and hair frizzled. Jennie Murchison, black clothes and a feather in her hair; Ella Wexford, red suit flat in front and stuck out behind. Pauline Tresley—I tell you, boss, she was a daisy. Bigger'n a tub and dressed to the branch. She had on a velvet outfit a mile long, and sixteen rows of teeth on her gloves. Her hair was a dead yellow tied up like a bun, and had a lot of vegetables in it. Florence Ross, green dress, flipped with velvet and hoisted up at the side with a white check-rein; Vinnie Hammersly, white network with red streaks, walked with a limp, and hair frescoed. That's all I got. There was a lot of old pelicans there, but I knew you didn't care for them, and, as for the men, I told 'em it would cost 'em a dollar apiece to get in, and as they wouldn't put up I shaved 'em. I can state that they were a cheap lot, who don't know any more about society than a pig does of politics, and I'll teach 'em a lesson. And, I say, we'd better give the Chairman a rub. He didn't introduce me to a solitary hen. Better say that he hasn't paid his gas bill for seven months, and that day before yesterday his accounts were found short. What do you think?"

"Got any more about the party?" demanded the city editor, rising slowly.

"Nothing, only that the grub wasn't fit to eat, though furnished by that popular caterer, Mr. Traphagener. I told him I'd give him a puff. You might say, too, that the whole party was a dead failure on account of the villainous treatment to which our new society reporter was subjected when he asked for a handful of cigars. Say, what have you got for me to do to-night?"

"Not a thing!" yelled the city editor, as he brought the gas-pipe across the new reporter's ear.

"You infernal reptile, don't you know that was one of the best houses in town and the affair one of the finest of the season?"

"I'm going back to St. Paul," groaned the new reporter, as he fell down stairs. "If that's Brooklyn society, I'm going where they have some style," and he struck off toward the Northwest largely afoot.

The Subscriber's Address.

The carriers' address, says the Detroit Free Press, is legendary with every newspaper, but no one ever hears of a "subscribers' address." Why not? He has a side to this story, and it is entitled to a hearing. When he gets it his address will read something as follows:

"Say, you carrier-boy, hold on a minute! This is New Year's day—the beginning of 1881. There are several new leaves I want you to turn over before the sun goes down to-night. When you come spooking along here at 5 o'clock in the morning to leave my paper I want you to remember that it is to be shoved tarough the opening in the side door. I have left word at the office about fifty times, but you insist on throwing it on the front steps. If you persist in this persistency I'll make hash of you some fine morning!

"There's another trifle I want to refer to. Why on earth can't you come along here without trying to raise the dead? You are not hired to slam gates, stone dogs, chase cats or whistle. You are not happy unless you wake up half your patrons, but I'm a patron who won't stand it any longer. The very next time you come along here with that infernal 'Sally Waters,' or whatever her cognomen is, I'm going to jump out of bed and take after you, and five minutes after I have got hold of your hair you'll take rank with the baldest bald-head in America.

"And, by the way, how often are you going to skip me this year? Your excuses are altogether too thin. Don't try that on me this year! I'm kind-hearted and long-suffering, but there is a limit to all things. The very first time I miss my daily I'm going to hire a field-piece, load it to the muzzle with powder, nails, glass and broken stones, and tie you where you will get the full force of the discharge right between the eyes!

"And you want to leave that dog of yours at home. I'm laying for that cur! When you can't set him on our cat you manage to meet some carrier with another canine and get up a fight and raise a neighborhood hubbub. Oh! I've had my eyes on you, young man, and you've got to step high for the next 365 days! Yes, I know it's cold, and you have to get up early, and it's a long and lonesome route, but you must also respect my feelings. Here's $1 for you, and I want you to brace up and drop your mean little tricks. No reason why you shouldn't some day be President if you begin right. That's all, and when you want a new pair of mittens you know where to come for them."

Amos Dow is an eccentric character living near Seabrook, N. H. Some twenty years ago he went into a barber's shop and was shaved with a razor which the owner said cost fifteen dollars. Whether he thought the story too big or the price too high, it is certain that a razor has never touched his face since. But the most singular freak is in regard to women. He built a house and placed over the door a sign which reads as follows; "Notice. Admittance to Gent's but no ladies," and no woman has ever crossed the threshold of his door. He lives alone, does all his own work, and appears to be happy.

A young man has been arrested in New York for robbing stages. He has been making his living for three months, sometimes "earning" $3 a day by his misdeeds. He dressed well, and would politely take nickels and dimes from passengers for the obvious purpose of dropping them in the box, but in reality he pocketed them and dropped in coins of lower denominations.

Simply to take a little of the pride and superiority out of the fair ones, will they permit us to call their attention to the fact that all the angels that are mentioned in the Bible are male angels? There are no female angels on record.

The German postoffice uses postage stamps whose colors can be cancelled by water. This always prevents fraud, for as soon as the stamps are washed, the color is obliterated.

Some of the girls of the period are parting their hair on one side. They do this because they do not wish to look like the soft young men who part their hair in the middle.

A bride is reported as saying: "I told all my friends to have my name put on my presents, so that if divorced, George should not be able to claim them."

A Chicago dentist says that of people under thirty, more ladies than gentlemen apply for false teeth, and he finds the fact to be that young ladies chew caramels.

Mr. Spoopendyke and the Dog.

"Look here, my dear," said Mr. Spoopendyke, as he led a huge and shaggy dog into his wife's room, "I've got a dog a friend of mine gave me. What do you think of him?"

"Good gracious!" ejaculated Mrs. Spoopendyke, mounting a chair in dismay. "Is he mad?"

"No, Mrs. Spoopendyke," retorted her husband, "he not only isn't mad, but he isn't a steplader either, nor a bird's-eye view. He's a dog, and, if you don't get out of that chair, he'll probably bite your legs off."

Mrs. Spoopendake sat down on her feet and eyed the brute with some trepidation.

"May'be he's got the hydrophobia," she suggested, by way of a hearty welcome.

"P'raps he has," agreed Mr. Spoopendyke; "but, if he has, he's got it in his pocket. Come here, doggee, doggee, doggee!" and Mr. Spoopendyke snapped his fingers persuasively.

"Why don't he come when you call him?" asked Mrs. Spoopendyke, deeply interested in the proceedings.

"Because you make such a dod gasted noise you scare him," explained Mr. Spoopendyke. "Come, doggee, doggee, doggee!"

"I don't quite like the way his tongue hangs out," objected Mrs. Spoopendyke. "It don't look natural."

"Maybe you don't like the way his tail hangs out, either. P'raps you think that's artificial, too. With your information about dogs you only need a flat bottom and a broken hinge to be a flog pound. Keep quiet now, while I teach him some tricks. Come here, doggee! Sit up, sir!"

The dog stretched out his legs, opened a mouth like a folding bedstead and growled.

"What makes him do that?" asked Mrs. Spoopendyke, sitting on the back of a chair with her feet in the seat.

"Dod gast it!" howled Mr. Spoopendyke. "Who do you s'pose made him do it? Think he works on a wire? Got a notion he goes by steam? He don't, I tell ye, he's alive, and he does it because that's the bent of his measly mind. What are ye sitting up there for? Can't ye see he don't like it? Now, you sit still. Here doggee, doggee, good doggee, sit up and beg!" and Mr. Spoopendyke held up an admonitory finger.

The dog eyed Mr. Spoopendyke with anything but an assuring glance.

"He's hungry," suggested Mrs. Spoopendyke. "Dogs do like that when they want to be taken down in the yard and be fed."

"Of course you know," grumbled Mr. Spoopendyke. "All you want is perfect ignorance on the part of the police to be a dog fight. Got anything in the house for him to eat?"

"There's some cold oyster stew and a piece of custard pie—"

"That's it!" raved Mr. Spoopendyke. "That's what's the matter with the dog. He wants pie! You've got it. You only need a commi'tee and a fight to be a bench show. Where's the oysters? Don't ye see the dog pining for oysters? Haven't ye got some cold coffee for him? Give him a lemon to stay his stomach!" and Mr. Spoopendyke jumped straight up in the air and landed on the dog.

The dog made for the open air with a howl, and Mr. Spoopendyke gathered up twelve baskets of himself and looked after his prize.

"Never mind, dear," said Mrs. Spoopendyke, soothingly, "he'll come back."

"If he does I'll kill him," shouted Mr. Spoopendyke. "See what you've done. You made me lose my dog and torn my trousers. Anything more about dogs you don't know? Get any more intelligence to impart about dogs? All you want is a bucket of brandy around your neck and a snow-storm to be a monk of St. Bernard," with which logical conclusion Mr. Spoopendyke began exploring his outlying districts for possible bites, while his wife speculated upon the salvation of the cold oysters and the custard pie by the sudden and eminently satisfactory disaffection of the dog.—Brooklyn Eagle.

COL. MCSPILLKINS, who holds a high rank in a Galveston military organization, was aroused a few nights ago by the sound as of burglars in the house. He instantly seized a shot-gun, and, cocking both barrels, called out in thunder tones: "Halt! Who goes there?" "Don't be scared, papa; I won't do nuffin to you, I want a dwink," piped an infantile voice.—Galveston News.

EVERY enterprise of life, from the simplest to the most complex, has its necessary drudgery. On the faithful performance of this is founded all true success; and only those who are willing to bear the burden with courage, energy and perseverance have any right to expect prosperity.

A bride in western New York was recently married in a pair of stockings which cost $150. The man who would venture to take a girl of such tastes as a help meet must be possessed of a courage compared to which the intrepidity of him who first ventured to eat raw oysters will shrink into insignificance.

The latter has already started for Montana for the examination of the principal mining district in that Territory. The task of the expedition will extends through several years.

Butte City, Montana, has some good regulations. NO ELECTION.

The Supreme Court has at last settled the vexed question as to whether we were obliged to have a general election for County officers this Fall, or whether the present officers were to hold over until their successors were elected in the Fall of 1882, under what is known as the Hartson bill, passed by the last Legislature. The decision of our highest tribunal is: There shall be no election this Fall. In some counties this decision will not be received with much satisfaction, but we believe that the people of Mono will be well pleased with it. We have a worthy set of county officials, and there would be nothing to gain, so far as this county is concerned, in having an election this Fall. The decision saves our people heap of button-holding, incident to such public pastimes, and our officers many a dollar that would otherwise go for "incidentals." We congratulate our people and our county officials, particularly, on the outcome of this vexed question.

STILL IN FORCE.—Attorney-General Hart has given his opinion, that the section of Code exempting active and exempt firemen, of unpaid fire companies, from the payment of road or any other head tax (excepting State poll tax) is still in effect. Under this ruling firemen and exempt firemen are exempt from the payment of road and hospital taxes.

JOB PRINTING.—Job printing of the finest description will be furnished at this office at Sacramento prices.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE BRIDGEPORT SCHOOL.—The Trustees of the Bridgeport public school ask the taxpayers of this district to vote for a small tax to carry on the school for another term. The amount asked for is but a small pittance, and, consequently, none should refuse granting it. Our district school has been one of the best, having the best of teachers, and the attendance of pupils has averaged higher than any other in Mono county. The Trustees have devoted much time and attention to the educational business of the district and find that they must call on the parents and taxpayers of the district to assist them in re-opening the school for the coming winter, They have conducted its financial affairs as economically as they would have managed their own business, and the sum asked for to be raised by tax is quite small—smaller we think, than they ought to ask for, and no taxpayers should begrudge the small amount he would be called on to pay. It is the desire of the Trustees to open the school on the 3d of October, and continue it during the winter, and longer, if the funds hold out. The harvesting will soon be over and our boys will again have nothing to do, and it will be better to have them in school than allow them to run the streets—the school of the hoodlum. We have a fine school house, well furnished, and it is for our taxpayers, a majority of whom are parents, to say whether it will remain closed, or be opened for the great purpose for which it was erected—the education of the youth of Bridgeport, It is a great credit to a town to have a good school, and Bridgeport has always enjoyed that luxury, and we trust our people will see that it is continued and kept up to the high standard it has always been credited with.

A GHOST.—On Thursday night the prisoners in the County jail were horrified at the visit of a ghost—supposed to be that of a Chinaman who was hanged here about three years ago. The table, benches, etc., were thrown about in promiscuous confusion, and finally the clammy hand of the visitor was placed upon the face of one of the prisoners, who rushed from his cell into the corrider, terror stricken and yelling for help. It was sometime before the prisoner could be pacified, and the "Red" of his complexion resumed its sway. We hope his ghostship will not tarry long away but make the jail his home while in this section.

S. A. Mack, formerly of Bridgeport, Mono county, was found drowned in the Tuolumne river, three miles below this place, on Thursday of last week. He had been drinking quite hard for some time, and it is supposed he was drowned some three days before while affected by delirium tremens. An inquest was held on the body by James Barney, Justice of the Peace.—Modesto News.

The deceased was formerly County Clerk of Mono county, but his intemperate habits compelled the duties of the office to devolve upon J. W. Towle.

JUBILANT.—On receipt of the news yesterday that the Supreme Court had decided that there should be no election for county officers this Fall, Ben. H. Miller, our genial County Clerk, had a barrel of lager tapped in the main hall of the Court House and entertained his friends. All who have had business relations with our present officers are satisfied with the decision of the Supreme Court—that our present officials are to remain masters of the situation until '83.

SHOULD BE STOPPED.—Twice, within our own knowledge, within the past two weeks, families on Main street have been forced to hear the most foul-mouthed language that the tongue of man can utter—language that would put to blush the most depraved being that finds congenial company on the Barbary coast of San Francisco. It is time such conduct was discontinued, either voluntarily or compulsory, and we hope that the next time decency is thus outraged that heads of families will assert their manhood and have the transgressor punished.

A GOOD OPENING.—Bridgeport wants a good boot and shoe maker. A man who will attend to his business, and not neglect his customers for the purpose of laying around saloons and gambling, will do well here—at least others have. Let some good man come and give us a trial.

PERSONAL.—Our Senior, R. M. Folger, returned on Tuesday from a visit to the other side of the mountains. He returns as fat as a prize porker, and terribly lazy.

E. B. Cleveland, of the Bodie Free Press, passed through town yesterday on his return from his Yosemite excursion.

HO FOR MONO LAKE!—To-morrow a large number of our belles and beaux are going to Mono Lake for a sail on its placid waters. They will leave town at a very early hour—about four o'clock, in order to get to the landing before the steamer Rocket shoots out.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.—An adjourned meeting of the Board of Supervisors will be held on next Monday week, September 5.

NOT ENOUGH.—Had the murderers who have been confined in our county jail received their deserts, there would be a score of ghosts flitting around it, instead of one.

SCHOOL TAX.—An election for the levying of a small school tax will be held here on the 10th of September.

VICE PRESIDENT ARTHUR.—The N. Y. Herald asserts confidently that if Arthur should become President he will make no changes in the administration; will make no removals from office except for cause; will attempt no change in policy or in the personnel of the present Administration; and is equally certain that the members of the present Cabinet and some other important officers of the Government may offer their resignations, but that Arthur will at once ask them to continue in office, and it will be their highest duty to the country to do so. There will be no new policies attempted; but the country will go on, and the public business will go on just as before. It is to be hoped that the New York Herald will prove correct in what it asserts. If Arther, should he become President, follows the course as predicted by the Herald the country will have no complaints to make of him.

The S. F. Bulletin says that Miss Maggie Campbell, a resident of Oakland, is said by her physician and nurse to have eaten nothing whatever for fifty days preceding last Tuesday. She is a young lady of exceptional physical development and one year ago when she was 14 years of age she weighed 290 pounds. She was taken ill some three months ago, and the physicians state that during the fifty days she fasted her system was sustained by the consumption of the fatty tissues. Even yet, however, she is not much wasted, except about the feet and leg. Her father, Alexander Campbell, was a former employe of Roman & Co., and a member of the old Volunteer Fire Department of San Francisco.

MASON AND DIXON'S LINE.—On the 4th of August, 1763, Thomas and Richard Penn and Lord Baltimore, being together in London, agreed with Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, two Surveyors, to mark, run and settle and fix the boundary line between Maryland on one hand and Delaware and Pennsylvania on the other. They accomplished their work to within thirty-six miles, six chains and fifty links, when they were told by their Indian escorts that it was the will of the Sioux Nation that the surveys should cease, and they terminated accordingly. Mason died in Pennsylvania in 1778; Dixon died at Durham, England, in 1777.

On Tuesday Guitteau, the President's assassin, attacked the jail guard with a knife, but was overpowered and disarmed. He tried to make out that he was insane, but it was too thin. It is a pity the guard had not given him a dose of lead that would not have killed him, but laid him out for a time.

The three penitentiaries of New York paid their running expenses the past six months and a little more. It is the first time in the history of the State that all of the penitentiaries have been self-sustaining.

The owner of a fruit ranch near Los Gatos expects this year to realize from three acres of peaches, $3,000.

Pat. Holland is Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of Pinal county, Arizona.

Nature's Big Gas Tanks.

Bradford, Pa., and neighboring places are lighted and heated by natural gas. In 1875 an oil company was sinking a well in a high hill west of Bradford. At the depth of several hundred feet they struck a vein of gas. No oil was found. The force of the gas was such that when it was ignited a pillar of fire more than fifty feet high was formed. The roar of the gas could be heard for a mile and more. This burned for months. The heat was such that grass and foliage grew in the depth of winter as luxuriantly for hundreds of feet around as it did in the summer. Strawberries ripened near this well in February. The well had been burning for a long time before the feasibility of utilizing it was thought of. A belt of dry territory, but yielding vast volumes of gas, was subsequently found to exist in the vicinity of the original gas well. A company was formed to carry the gas into the city. It is now distributed all over the place by pipes. A gas-pipe, with jets attached, is run into the parlor and kitchen stoves. The supply of gas is controlled by a stopcock on the pipe. When a fire is wanted a lighted match is thrown into the stove and the gas turned on. The fire is started at once. The gas possesses great heating qualities, and apartments are warmed as quickly and as well by it as by coal. Gas for illuminating purposes is conducted into the house the same as artificial gas is taken in. At first the light was not brilliant and steady, owing to impurities. Processes for refining it were invented, and now the natural illuminator is unsurpassed by the finest manufactured gas. It is so cheap that people seldom turn out their lights. It burns day and night in stores hotels, private houses and streets. Consumers pay by the month instead of by the thousand. Gas-wells have come to be more valuable than oil wells, and the sudden phenomenal appearance of oil in some of the principal wells in the gas belt has created consternation among owners and consumers. For years the gas has flowed from wells in unremitting volume. That oil was not to be found there it was thought had been conclusively settled.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Tennessee Marble.

Mr. John J. Craig, of Knoxville, Tenn., says that the United States Government is now working successfully a quarry of white stone in the immediate vicinity of that city which is pronounced by competent judges to be superior to anything of the kind found elsewhere in the United States for building and all out-door purposes. It is a highly crystallized limestone marble—and as it comes from the hammer or chisel is almost perfectly white; when polished it shows a faint pinkish blush, most delicate and beautiful; long exposure to the atmosphere seems to whiten and harden it, a sort of glass-like enamel forming over its surface and rendering it almost impervious to dampness and stains of any kind. A column of this marble, which has been standing in Knoxville more than thirty years, and which has never been touched with brush or soap, is as white and clean to-day as it was the day it was first exposed to the storms and sunshine of our fickle climate. The texture and working quality of the marble is unsurpassed. It is neither too hard nor too soft, but exactly soft enough to allow the sculptor to work it without force and trace on it the finest lines of finished form, and yet hard enough to retain these lines in all their original delicacy, unimpaired by wind or rain, for generations to come. The quantity of the marble is unlimited. Knoxville is surrounded by whole mountains of it. Facilities for transportation are now good and daily growing better. Car loads are being daily shipped to all sections of the country, and the absence of capital alone prevents the quarrying of it from soon developing into one of the most important industries in that singularly favored but as yet almost unknown section.—Scientific American.

The Transportation of Wheat.

The cost per bushel of bringing wheat from the great centers of production and distribution to the leading markets o. Europe has been elaborately compared and tabulated as follows by Mr. R. Meyer, in the Austrian Monthly of Social Science and Political Economy:

From	To
San Francisco	England	$0.36@	0.39
The "Far West"	Atlantic Harbor		44
New York	Liverpool		10
Chicago	Liverpool		13

Budapest	Liverpool via Fiume		28
Lemberg	Frankfort-on-the-Main		26
Vienna	Frankfort-on-the-Main		21
Venezia	Fiume		21
Vienna	Trieste		21

From Odessa is shipped the wheat of Southern Russia. Brody, in Northern Galicia, collects the wheat of the upper valleys of the rivers of Southern Russia. Lemberg, close by, is the capital of Galicia. Ibraila is the shipping point of Wallachia. Galacz ships the wheat of the upper valley of the Danube. Budapest is the central point of Hungary, as Vienna is of Austria. It costs nearly as much to carry wheat from Brody to Lemberg, fifty eight miles (no railway), as it does from Chicago to Liverpool. From Vienna to Trieste is about 250 miles by rail; in cost of transportation it is further than from Calcutta to England around the cape. California can easily compete with Hungary in the markets of Western Europe, the cost of raising the wheat being the same.

Alcohol Everywhere.

M. Muntz, a French scientist, has examined spring, river, sea and rain water; also snow. He finds alcohol in all except in very pure spring water. By comparison with water holding known quantities of alcohol, rain water and the water of the Seine are estimated to contain about one grain per cubic forty inches. Snow and cold rain contain a little more. The proportion in sea water is much the same. There is evident reason to suppose that alcohol exists in the state of vapor in air. This diffusion of the substance in nature is easily explained by the destruction of organic matter by various agents of fermentation.

HOUSE AND FARM.

One of the most prolific causes of contracted heels in horses is allowing their shoes to remain on too long. It is seldom we hear of horses having contracted heels when worked regularly every day. Few people are aware of the importance of removing a horse's shoes, which should be done at least every month or six weeks. It is too often the custom to allow the shoes, after having once been placed, to remain till worn out before removing them.

An ordinary farm wagon should be greased every Monday morning. A spring wagon should be greased after it has run forty or fifty miles, while a light carriage should be greased when it has run thirty miles. wiping the spindles clean and bright before applying the grease. For carriages use castor oil, and but a few drops to each spindle, but for farm wagons use the common axle grease.

Every household should have a few flowers, at least. They exert an educating and refining influence over children. Have a few flowers for their sakes, if for no other.

Each farmer should have his name in plain letters on his gate post, so that his place might be more easily found.

When roup is suspected in a fowl yard, feed scalded food, and frequently renew the drinking water.

The better stock a man owns, the better care he should take of it.

A Muscovy duck will hatch out more than twenty ducklings at one sitting.

There are people moving in good society in England who add to their income by leading conversation in a direction which will enable them incidentally to recommend the goods of certain houses, from which they receive a commission on all sales made through their influence.
